Rebecca Monteleone is an Assistant Professor of Disability and Technology at the University of Toledo. Her work focuses on the experiential expertise of people with disabilities in the design and use of everyday, medical, and assistive technologies. She has earned recognition as a Fulbright Scholar, Mirzayan Science and Technology Policy Fellow with the National Academy of Engineering, and an NSF IGERT Fellow.